

MEETING REPORT

The Three Brown Brothers, part two.

The group found Allan Jones's second talk about this family highly entertaining.

The narrator reminded us that this tale of his distant relations (by marriage) and their even more distant wanderings. His researches took him to a homemade hydroelectric power station and, more surprisingly, a dancing bear...in Sedgley! The saga started in Montgomery as before and we travelled with George and Annie all the way to British Columbia. There were mentions of Henry Hudson as in Hudsons Bay, Edward Evans who was second in command on Scott's ill-fated Antarctic expedition, and the worthy Arrow Lakes Historical Society in that part of Canada. A most entertaining and informative hour. We look forward to Allan Jones' next offering. Surely we're going to have another!

Many thanks to Allan Jones for another well researched and amusing tale.
